

ENGIN SLASHES ITS VOIP CALL RATES

Plus, free calls to landlines worldwide on Mother's Day

Sydney, 5 May 2005: engin, the Australian broadband phone company, today announced massive reductions to their already-low Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) call rates giving Australians the opportunity to reduce their monthly phone bill even further. engin's new call rates take effect immediately.

The new rate reductions include:

- National call rate reduced by 50% from 10 cents per minute to 5 cents per minute;
- International call rates reduced to:
 - 3.5 cents per minute from 5 cents for the following international destinations: Canada, China, Germany, Hong Kong, Ireland, New Zealand, Singapore, Taiwan, UK and USA;
 - 4 cents per minute to a further 26 international destinations.

In addition, the engin Voice Box $29.95 monthly plan now includes $25 of included calls a month, up from $20. This means customers can now benefit from either 250 local calls or $25 worth of national calls, international calls or calls to mobiles.

Ilkka Tales, Chief Executive Officer, engin said, "We are very excited to offer engin's newly reduced call rates to all existing and future engin customers. engin prides itself on giving the whole of Australia the chance to enjoy massive savings on phone bills and at the same time offer a real alternative to established fixed line carriers." engin Voice Box, using VoIP, enables consumers and businesses to make calls to, and receive calls from, any landline or mobile phone over their existing broadband Internet connection.

FREE CALLS TO MUM ON MOTHER'S DAY!

This Mother's Day, engin is giving Aussies the opportunity to stay in contact with one of their most important loved ones by offering customers two free calls of up to thirty minutes each to any landline world-wide from 12:00 am to 11:59 pm on Sunday 8, May.
